2) Read the passage then answer the questions: ( 10 marks )

Computer addiction can be defined as the excessive or compulsive use of the computer which persists despite serious negative consequences for personal, social, or occupational function. The addiction involves online and /or offline computer usage. The concept of computer addiction is broadly divided into two types, namely offline and online computer addiction. The term offline computer addiction is generally used when speaking about excessive gaming behavior, which can be practised both offline and online. Online computer addiction, also known as Internet addiction, gets more attention in general from scientific research than offline computer addiction, mainly because most cases of computer addiction are related to the excessive use of the Internet.

The symptoms of computer addiction include:1-Being drawn by the computer as soon as one wakes up and before one goes to bed. 2-Replacing old hobbies with excessive use of the computer and using the computer as one's primary source of entertainment.3-Lacking physical exercise and/or outdoor exposure because of constant use of the computer. This could contribute to many health problems such as obesity Researchers link internet/computer addiction with existing mental health issues, most notably depression. Studies showed that the majority of those who met the requirements of internet/computer addiction suffered from interpersonal difficulties and stress and that those addicted to online games specifically responded that they hoped to avoid reality. There are many consequences resulting from computer addiction. For example, excessive computer use may result in lack of face to face social interaction. It may also lead to Computer Vision Syndrome (CVS), a condition that results in headaches, blurred vision, neck pain, fatigue, eye strain, dry eyes, irritated eyes, double vision, vertigo or dizziness.

2 - Read the passage then answer the questions: ( 10 marks )

Abraham Lincoln was born in 1809 in northern Kentucky. Abraham had little formal education growing up. He loved to read, so he educated himself. He studied law by reading law books. He became a lawyer in 1837 in Springfield, Lincoln was a gifted speaker. He won national attention for his speeches against slavery during several debates. This led to his nomination for the presidency, which he won in 1860. President Lincoln's election enraged the Southern states and seven of them announced they would leave the U.S. and form their own government. In 1861, Carolina troops fired artillery at Fort Sumter, a U.S. military fort. This began the South Civil War. The war would be the central feature of Lincoln's presidency.

Lincoln's goal through the war was to reunite the North, known as the Union, with the South, known as the Confederacy. He issued the liberation announcement in 1863, which signaled freedom for the slaves. Lincoln was reelected in 1864. After four long years, the Union won the Civil War in April 1865. Lincoln's goal to reunite the country had come true, but he would not live to see it. Just six days after the end of the war, on April 15, 1865, President Lincoln was killed by John Wilkes Booth. He was the first American president to be assassinated. ## B. Reading Comprehension

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Plants have been used for treating illnesses since primitive times. Paintings in the tombs of the pharaohs show that plants were being used by the Ancient Egyptians for medicinal purposes. Today, some drugs are still based on natural herbs.

Aspirin, for example, is based on the bark of willow trees.

Natural remedies are attracting increasing attention all over the world. The advantage of herbal medicine is that the whole of the plant can be used. The powerful substance in the plant cures the illness while the contents of the rest of the plant may help to prevent any harmful side effects. In this way, herbal medicines may be safer than chemical ones.

Garlic is just one herb which has been used throughout the world as a cure for diseases as it is used to treat hair problems. Similarly, henna, which is known to be good for the hair, can be used in the treatment of cancer.

If you pay a visit to a herbalist shop, you will be struck by different colours and smells. There are jars full of tree barks, roots, powders, oils and spices. The customer enters the shop and explains his symptoms to the herbalist, who will take notes, study medical reports and check his reference books before writing out a prescription. However, about eighty per cent of those who consult a herbalist have already been to a doctor. As a result of the worldwide interest in herbal medicines, Egypt has set aside 50,000 acres of land in Beni Suef and Minya for the cultivation of herbs with medical properties. If this experiment is successful, lots of countries may import herbs from Egypt in the near future.

② Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

What makes it rain? Rain falls from clouds for the same reason anything falls to Earth. The Earth's gravity pulls it. But every cloud is made of water droplets or ice crystals. Why doesn't rain or snow fall constantly from all clouds? The droplets or ice crystals in clouds are exceedingly small. The effect of gravity on them is minute. Air currents move and lift droplets so that the net downward displacement is zero, even though the droplets are in constant motion.

A) crystals behave somewhat like dust in the air made visible in a shaft of sunlight. To the casual observer, dust seems to act in a totally random fashion, moving about chaotically without fixed direction. But in fact dust particles are much larger than water droplets and they finally fall. The cloud droplet of average size is only 1/2500 inch in diameter. It is so small that it would take sixteen hours to fall half a mile in perfectly still air, and it does not fall out of moving air at all. Only when the droplet grows to a diameter of 1/125 inch or larger can it fall from the cloud. The average raindrop contains a million times as much water as a tiny cloud droplet. The growth of a cloud droplet to a size large enough to fall out is the cause of rain and other forms of precipitation. This important growth process is called "coalescence."

B) Droplets and ice

C) Choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

1) What is the main topic of the passage?

a.The mechanics of rain

b.The climate of North America

2) The word "minute" is closest in meaning to which of the following.....

- a.Second                      b.Tiny                      c.Slow                      d.Predictable

3) Why don't all ice crystals in clouds immediately fall to earth?

- a.They are balanced by the pressure of rain droplets.
- b.The effect of gravity at high altitude is random.
- c.They are kept aloft by air currents.
- d.The heat from the sun's rays melts them.

4) What is the diameter of the average cloud droplet?

- a.1/16 inch                      b.1/125 inch
- c.1/2500 inch                      d.One million of an inch

5) What can be inferred about drops of water larger than 1/125 inch in diameter?

- a.They never occur.
- b.They are not affected by the force of gravity.
- c.In still air they would fall to earth.
- d.In moving air they fall at a speed of thirty-two miles per hour.

6) In this passage, what does the term "coalescence" refer to?

- a.The gathering of small clouds to form larger clouds
- b.The growth of droplets
- c.The fall of raindrops and other precipitation
- d.The movement of dust particles in the sunlight

B Reading Comprehension

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

What is happening to our weather?

One weekend in May 2010, Nashville in the USA was expecting a few centimetres of rain. Two days later, 33 centimetres had fallen and eleven people had died in the resulting floods. There's been a change in the weather. Extreme events like the Nashville flood – described by officials as a once-in-a-millennium occurrence – are more frequent than before. Also in 2010, 28 centimetres of rain fell on Rio de Janeiro in 24 hours, causing mud slides that buried hundreds of people. And record rains in Pakistan led to flooding that affected more than 20 million people. The following year, floods in Thailand left factories near Bangkok under water, creating a worldwide shortage of computer hard drives. Meanwhile, severe droughts have affected Australia, Russia and East Africa. Deadly heat waves have hit Europe, leaving 35,000 people dead in 2003. Financial losses from such events jumped 25 percent to an estimated $150 billion worldwide in 2011.

What's going on? Are these extreme events signals of a dangerous, human-made change in the Earth's climate? Or are we just going through a natural run of bad luck? The short answer is: probably both. On the one hand, the most important influences on weather events are natural cycles in the climate. Two of the most famous weather cycles, El Niño and La Niña, originate in the Pacific Ocean and can affect weather patterns worldwide. But something else is happening too: the Earth is steadily getting warmer, with significantly more moisture in the atmosphere. The long-term accumulation of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere is trapping heat and warming up the land, oceans and atmosphere. As the oceans warm up, they produce more water vapour and this, in turn, feeds big storms, such as hurricanes and typhoons.

And yet, there are ways of dealing with the effects of such extreme events. After 2003, French cities set up air-conditioned shelters for use in heat waves. In the 2006 heat wave, the death rate was two-thirds lower. 'We know that warming of the Earth's surface is putting more moisture into the atmosphere. We've measured it. The satellites see it,' says climatologist Jay Gulledge. Another scientist, Michael Oppenheimer, agrees. We need to face up to that reality, he says, and do the things we know can save lives and money.

A- Choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

1- The article says that extreme weather events -----

- a- have an influence on the climate.
- b- kill more people than before.

- a- scientists don't know what causes extreme weather.
- b- there's more than one factor influencing our weather.
- c- it's not possible for humans to influence the weather.
- d- extreme weather happens in just one place

3- Why was the rain in Nashville considered to be an extreme event?

- a- There was very high rainfall over many days.
- b- The amount of rain was forecast in advance.
- c- There was very high rainfall in a very short time.
- d- there was little rainfall over a few days

4- The rainfall in Nashville in 2010 -----

- a- last happened a thousand years ago.
- b- happens every one hundred years.
- c- caused very rare flooding.
- d- affected the production of computer hard drives

5- Why did fewer people die in France in the 2006 heat wave?

- a- There were better facilities provided.
- b- Fewer people were in city centres at the time.
- c- It wasn't as severe as in 2003.
- d- Many people were taken to hospitals immediately

6- According to Michael Oppenheimer ---

- a- there's no way to stop extreme weather.
- b- we can be better prepared for the effects of climate change.
- c- we need to spend more money so that fewer people die
- d- we can actually do very little to reduce the effect of extreme weather

B- Answer the following questions:

2 Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Autism is a complex developmental disability whose signs typically appear during early childhood and affect a person's ability to communicate, and interact with others. Children who suffer from autism find it difficult or even impossible to show emotions in a normal way. Some of the behaviors associated with autism include delayed learning of language and having no ability to hold a conversation. Parents and the people who take care of autistic children often describe them as being emotionless. They don't make eye contact with other people around them. They often perform repetitive behavior, such as rocking back and forth, or repeat meaningless phrases. Sometimes, autistic children stop talking completely.

These behaviors can be frustrating for the parents of an autistic child, who often feel helpless as they can do nothing to give them a hand. Many parents think that they are responsible for their child's condition. Some researchers believe that the disorder may have a physical cause, related to a problem in the development of the brain. Others think that when a pregnant woman is exposed to certain drugs or chemicals, her child is more likely to be autistic. In fact, The exact reason why autism happens isn't clear, but some children grow out of their autism as they mature, and go on to lead normal lives.
